

ALL WORKING NOW FOR QUICK ACTION

This Week Probably Will See Adjournment of Congress.

TARIFF WILL BE SETTLED

Wool Revision Measure to Emerge First From Tangled Situation.

Washington, D. C., August 13.—The whole tariff revision legislation question will be settled during the coming week, which, in all probability, will mark the closing of Congress. Almost all of the members of both houses are anxious to get home, despite the volitions of the revisionists that they willingly would remain in session until autumn if the legislation they want could be enacted. All the power of the Democratic party that now controls the House and of the effective Democratic-Progressive Republican coalition in the Senate will be centered on quick action on the tariff revision measures. This means, in the belief of leaders of both parties, an adjournment possibly by the end of the week, or at any rate within a few days thereafter.

Wool Measure First.

Out of the present tangled situation, with the three tariff bills—wool, free list and cotton—in varying stages of legislation, the wool measure will be the first to emerge. A complete agreement between the two houses has been reached on this bit of legislation, which provides for a basic average duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem on wool, with the wool classification provisions. The wool measure, framed by Democratic Leader Underwood, of the House, making a flat tariff on all wools. It will be rushed past its final stage in the House by adoption of the conference report Monday, and then hurried to the Senate for adoption there, if possible, Tuesday, and then on to the expected presidential veto which awaits all the tariff revision bills.

Everything hinges on that veto and the immediately subsequent move in the House. Democratic leaders are confident of the passage of the bill over the President's veto in the House, but are not confident of the outcome in the Senate. Passage over a veto requires a two-thirds majority.

The free list bill and the cotton bill are still hung up. The conferees on the free list bill have disagreed to the Senate's amendment to the free list, and the conferees on the cotton bill have disagreed to the Senate's amendment to the cotton bill. The conferees on the free list bill have agreed to the Senate's amendment to the free list, and the conferees on the cotton bill have agreed to the Senate's amendment to the cotton bill.

No Action Taken in Senate. The cotton bill has been discussed without action in the Senate. Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, who was chosen by the conferees to represent the Senate in the adjustment of the differences over the three bills, has expressed the belief that the cotton bill, which already has passed the House, can be put through the Senate. The Democrats are not so confident, for some of them oppose it on account of its effect on the big cotton mill interests in the Carolinas and elsewhere in the South.

There is a variety of miscellaneous legislation to be cleared up. The campaign publicity bill has been agreed to in conference, and will be reported to both houses to-morrow. Its companion piece, the proposed direct popular election of United States Senators, has failed in conference, and will go over to the mercies of the regular session of Congress.

Confirmation of the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France, a peace pact program promised in the President's policy, bids fair to go until the next session. A legislative investigation of alleged irregularities in the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, of Wisconsin, has been ordered by the Legislature at Madison, will come up again in the Senate probably to-morrow or Tuesday, with assurance of the Senate providing for a thorough inquiry.

A Red Letter Day. A red letter day in what has come to be known as the Wiley-Remsen case, pure food charges investigation by the House Committee on Cultural Department Expenditures, is promised for to-morrow, when the central figure, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Chemistry Bureau of the department, will testify. Dr. Wiley has been ordered by the House to appear in person, and his testimony is expected to be sensational. The New Mexico-Arizona statehood bill, which the President is expected to veto, will be considered on a possibility of passage over the veto. The outcome of this plan of the statehood advocates, however, is problematical. House leaders figure that there is no doubt of the ability to put the measure through again, but in the Senate the situation is different, and the vote on the original passage does not augur success on attempt to command a two-thirds vote.

The life of the National Monetary Commission is at stake on a vote which the Senate will take at 1:45 o'clock to-morrow afternoon on the Cummins resolution calling for that body to submit its final report and dissolve by December 4. There have been strenuous attacks on the commission, based on alleged extravagance and delay in submitting results to Congress, but its defenders have sparred for a little more time.

Taft's Veto Message Ready.

Beverly, Mass., August 13.—With his veto message on the Flood resolution providing for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico into the Union practically complete, President Taft brought his week-end visit here to a close to-night. The President left Beverly to-night for Boston, and the message went with him. He took the Federal express at 8 P. M. for Washington, and is scheduled to reach the capital to-morrow morning. The message may be sent to Congress during the day. Only a desire to revise it slightly after consultation with administration leaders is likely to postpone its presentation to Congress until Tuesday, if that body is in session.

The President's veto is understood to be based largely upon the provision for the recall of the judiciary provided for in the Arizona Constitution. To the New Mexican Constitution the President is understood to have no particular objection, but the provision for recall of the judges is a serious objection to the two Territories that a veto must affect them both.

It is expected that the President's position in regard to the recall of judges will be presented in no uncertain terms. A wool revision veto message has not been sent to Congress during the week, but the outlines of it are in his mind, and about all he will need to do in Washington will be to call in a secretary and dictate it. It was said here to-night that the second veto should reach Congress before the end of the week.

AIRMAN ARMY CORPS

France to Have 70 Aeroplanes and 250 Pilots in Case of War.

Paris, August 13.—Adolphe Messimy, Minister of War, has decided to form a reserve militia of aeroplanes for use in case of mobilization. Consequently, Vedrine, Breguet, Latham, Farman and all other French aeroplanes are to be enrolled in the army as sappers in a corps of engineers.

Moreover, each constructor of aeroplanes will be obliged to hold in readiness for mobilization one or more aeroplanes of the army model, the government allowing an annual subsidy of $1,000 for every aeroplane so reserved for an army pilot and another $1,000 for every pilot to be supplied by the constructors.

This organization will enable the French army in case of emergency to put into the sky seventy aeroplanes and 250 trained pilots.

FORMER BROKER IS HELD AS GEM THIEF

Warren I. Cale, Once a Leader in Atlantic City Society, Accused of $1,500 Larceny.

PHILADELPHIAN COMPLAINS

Son of Victim and a Companion
Are Also Taken Into Custody.

Atlantic City, August 13.—Warren I. Cale, formerly a real estate broker at 123 Atlantic Avenue, and a prominent figure in local society largely by reason of the beauty and talent of his handsome young wife, is in the city prison charged with jewel theft. Nothing in the past five years has caused a greater social sensation. Cale, who dropped out for a while about a year after a meteoric career that left him a financial wreck, was arrested shortly after midnight, together with Harry Smith and Robert Funk, both of Philadelphia, by detectives assigned to investigate a mysterious robbery of the seashore residence, 16 North Bellevue Avenue, of Mrs. Helen Smith, of Philadelphia. Yesterday Mrs. Smith, who took up her residence here eight weeks ago, reported the disappearance of diamond earrings and other jewelry valued at $1,500. She placed gems beneath a pillow in her bedroom when she was sleeping, and when she returned found them missing. Suspicion pointed to Harry Smith, a son of the complainant, who, it was learned, had invited Cale and Funk to the Bellevue Avenue cottage during the absence of his mother. A search of the three young men through the cafe district up to 2 o'clock in the morning, when all three were arrested, caused Mrs. Smith to visit police headquarters and formally enter complaint against the three prisoners. They were given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Jagmetty, who fixed bail at $1,000 each, pending a further hearing on Monday next.

Five years ago Cale was regarded as one of the most promising young brokers in the city, and had a profitable clientele and the best of business connections. His marriage about eight years ago to Miss Edna Capp, daughter of Dr. Capp, of Lancaster, Pa., was a brilliant social affair, and the bride was received with open arms by seashore society. After a year of prosperity Cale lost a great deal of money and had to abandon a handsome cottage he had purchased at Pacific and St. Charles Place, his office and became a curbside broker. Not dismayed by this change of fortune, young Mrs. Cale began to make practical use of her talent as a soloist. A year ago Cale disappeared, and since that time the brave-hearted woman had supported herself through her own efforts.

A few days ago Cale suddenly reappeared in the city. He urged his young wife to agree to a reconciliation, but she is said to have refused.

MARRIED SIXTY YEARS.

Celebration Held by Couple Near Lebanon, Pa.

Lebanon, Pa., August 13.—Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder, of Five Points, a suburb of this city, to-day celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. Neighbors and friends joining children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren in making the occasion a notable one. Mr. Snyder is eighty-three years old and Mrs. Snyder one year his junior.

Both are in good health, and until a year or so ago were as hale and hearty as the young. They have been married sixty years, and have no children.

HOTEL CLERK SUDDENLY ENRICHED IN HIS OLD AGE

Copper Mine in Which He Invested a Decade Ago Is Bought for Millions by Syndicate.

Paola, Kan., August 13.—From hotel clerk to millionaire, and in the evening of his life, is the experience of E. Hite, day clerk at the Commercial Hotel here, and it is all the result of a little investment in a Mexican copper mine twenty years ago.

At that time Mr. Hite was one of a group of promoters of Mexican copper mines near the border of Mexico. His return from St. Louis, where the sale has just been made, Mr. Hite announced that his holdings were sold for $20,000,000 to a Mexican syndicate. Mr. Hite figures that his share is $1,100,000.

Mr. Hite is seventy-one years old, but would easily pass for a man of Hite. He came to Paola more than a year ago in reply to an advertisement asking for a position in a quiet place where he could rest for a year. It is said his wife is in Washington, and a son lives in Kansas City, Mo., but other than that little is known of Mr. Hite's family connections, as he made few acquaintances in Paola.

ILL LUCK AT TABLES.

Lord Camoys' Venture at Dippe Proves Unfortunate.

London, August 13.—While the fate of the House of Lords was in the balance Lord Camoys, who is reported engaged to Miss Mildred Sherman, was trying to make out his small income of $5,000 a year by playing chemin de fer at the gambling casino. In this game Lord Camoys was not quite so lucky as in the more skillful game of hearts. His small fund of ready money was soon exhausted, and he returned to London and to his six hundred-dollar-a-year fling.

However, London tradesmen and money brokers are notoriously kind, especially to peers engaged to marry rich American girls, and there is no doubt Lord Camoys will have little difficulty in financing his prospective trip to America. His present intention is to start for Newport about the middle of September.

"I am going to settle down now and attend to promoting that mining stamp factory," he told his friends on his arrival in London. "It's much surer than chemin de fer."

Among Lord Camoys' fellow-players at the Dippe casino was Von Arkov, the Austrian count who was arrested at the Plaza Hotel in New York last February. Unlike Lord Camoys, Von Arkov won a small fortune. In fact, Von Arkov is the sensation of the Dippe season. He won 15,000 francs at the last two nights' play in succession. He is living in expensive state at the Hotel Royal, keeps a motor car and tips like a Pittsburgh millionaire.

New Castle, Del., August 13.—Louis Bauer, employed at the Edgar Allen Steel plant, on reaching his home in Dobbinsville, found the house empty and a note from his wife, with the one word written, "Good-by." He also found his wife had taken their little daughter. At Wilmington he learned they had gone to Delaware City. He went there and found, he says, they and George Harris, former boarder, left on one of the Erie Railroad lines for Baltimore, and he notified the police there by telegraph to have them arrested. The wife, Bauer is thirty years old, and Harris about twenty-three.

"It is blasphemous to say silly and frivolous women wearing on their bosoms the sign of suffering which our Saviour wore, and they haven't grit enough to give birth to a child. The lack of children among our women of wealth is a sign of physical and moral degeneracy."

"In the letters I receive from day to day there comes to light a sure, strong call for a uniform divorce law in our land. We must amend our Constitution. We must protect our very origin of life in the nation. We have in days past been careful about making laws to protect our trades and industries. Now we must drive deeper and seek to protect our very native religious power. I received letters last week from all over the nation, from all kinds of people, thanking me for my sermon of last Sunday."

PAY LOW, LIVING HIGH: PASTOR TO QUIT CHURCH

2000 A Year Not Enough to Get Bread and Butter for Family.

Lebanon, Ind., August 13.—The high cost of living and the low pay of clergymen have driven the Rev. E. T. Greenleaf, pastor of a circuit of three churches, out of his position and probably out of the ministry.

He has resigned his pastorate over the Milledgeville, Mount Zion and Corinth congregations of the Methodist Protestant denomination, for the reason that he and his family cannot live on the annual salary of $600, which he receives.

To-day he carried his resignation to the conference of his denomination at Muncie, refusing to be reassigned to this circuit. He announced that he would have to quit serving the ord unless the conference should see fit to increase his salary so that he may take up some worldly occupation "on the side" to get bread and butter for his family.

The Rev. Mr. Greenleaf's stand is regarded here as courageous, and the public's attention to the burden of high prices and the church's notice of the impoverished state of its servants is eliciting favorable comment.

GIRL PICKPOCKET ROBS FIVE IN COURT

She Steals From Detectives Just to Show She Knows How.

CHILD TAUGHT BY MAN

Thief, 9 Years Old, Describes Her Teacher, for Whom Detectives Begin Search.

New York, August 13.—The story of the detectives was hard to believe, and it is no wonder Justice Hoyt, in the Children's Court, yesterday morning, first looked doubtfully at the two strong-arm men, then at a girl of nine, fair haired, with mild blue eyes, who smiled reassuringly, when he shook his head in disbelief.

"Oh, yes, I'm a pickpocket, all right," said the child. "Since I've been in the room the pockets of five men have been picked—two of the detectives who brought me here. And I did it all just the way a man showed me how."

The detectives laughed, then got red when they found the girl had taken an article from the pocket of each and something from three other men who were standing there waiting for another case. The detectives admitted the joke was on them, but said they had told the child to show how expert she was, so the court would see she was kept off the street, where her nimble fingers made her dangerous.

The tricky little girl, Concetto, 9 years old, of 222 Chrystie Street, who looked the reverse of the usual Italian child, had been picked up in the East Side the day before by West-himerberg, of the strong-arm squad, and Wittenberg, of headquarters. They were passing through Orchard Street on the lookout for a man who was expected to give them trouble by submitting to arrest when their attention was attracted to a different kind of game. Started at seeing the Italian girl deftly slip her hand into a woman's bag and withdraw a pocket-book, they dropped big game quest for the time and followed the child.

The route took them through Orchard, Houston, First, Rivington, Stanton and Broome Streets, and whenever the crowd was thickest there was the girl's thief. In less than an hour the girl had gone through the pockets of thirteen persons, stealing articles of one kind or another, while the victim calmly went their way, not knowing they had been robbed. When the girls were scarce for a moment or were hard to approach, without attracting suspicion, the little girl would keep her hand in, stole many small articles from a dozen stands.

All the articles the child placed in a large bag she carried, and deciding there was more than sufficient proof at hand, the detectives arrested her. The little pickpocket was frightened at first, but when told the detectives meant no harm, said all she was afraid of was a beating. She readily confessed to being a pickpocket, and was told of the fact that though five weeks at the "business" never before had she been caught, and never had one of the victims even suspected her.

The girl said a man, of whom she gave a good description, had taught her how to pick pockets so well she could beat any of the older hands at it. She also described a boy who acted as a go-between for her and the man. The police expect to get the man and boy.

"They always took away from me everything I stole," said the child in a sad tone. "I got lots of pretty things, but they took them, too. They paid me 15 cents a day, and that wasn't enough, was it?"

The child's father, who hurried to court, said she always was a good girl, only she seemed to like running the streets. When told she had been picking pockets he wished to whip her in court, and couldn't understand why the justice wouldn't permit him to do so. Justice Hoyt instructed the detectives to bring in the man and boy, who are the responsible ones, he said, and sent the little girl to the Children's Society.

QUITS BUSINESS AT 74; GIVES HEIRS $3,000,000

Following Example of Father, Paper Manufacturer Divides His Fortune.

Batavia, Ill., August 13.—William Van Nortwick, following the example set by his father twenty-five years ago, has turned over to his son, son-in-law, and nephew properties valued at $3,000,000. The reason, just as was his father's, is that he does not care at an advanced age to be troubled with business worries. He is seventy-four years old. He retained enough of his fortune to provide for his personal wants.

The $3,000,000 worth of property was turned over to John S. Van Nortwick, of Batavia, William Van Nortwick's son; E. G. Hobler, of Batavia, his son-in-law, and William Van Nortwick, of Appleton, Wis., a nephew. The property consists of the Appleton Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of farm implements, belonging to the Van Nortwick family; the Van Nortwick Locks Paper Mill, the largest paper mill in the West, and practically all of the stock of the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal Company. In addition, large tracts of Canadian pulp wood land were turned over.

Nearly three-quarters of a century ago the father of William Van Nortwick, also named William, came to Batavia from the farm in Pennsylvania where he was born and reared. Through the manufacture of farm implements and later paper, and by developing water power along the Fox River, he amassed a fortune of approximately $6,000,000, and this, shortly before he died he turned over in equal shares to his two sons William Van Nortwick, of Batavia, and John S. Van Nortwick, of Appleton, Wis.

PET DOG CHECKS FIRE IN BUSINESS DISTRICT

Tugs at the Chef's Trousers in Burning Bakery Until He Notices Blaze.

Victoria, B. C., August 13.—A pet dog probably saved valuable property in the central business district here from destruction by fire by calling attention to a blaze which started in the Golden Sheaf bakery, on Shattuck Avenue, near University Avenue. Shortly before 7 o'clock in the morning Chef Oscar Bogue of the bakery restaurant, left the gas burning under the pet ferrier. Five minutes later the pet ferrier, belonging to one of the employees, tugged at his trousers. Bogue shoved the animal away, but the dog persisted with its mute warning of danger.

Amused, Bogue allowed himself to be led by the animal into the restaurant and discovered the woodwork about the coffee urn in flames. After a stiff fight he succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. The damage was nominal.

Bounty Will Form "Nest Egg" for Baby to Whom Doctor Hurried.

Norwich, Conn., August 13.—Dr. N. P. Smith, hurrying on an urgent midnight call in his racing automobile, struck and killed a fox on the Richmond Hill highway last night.

He took the animal's body to the home of his patient, Mrs. James Lathrop, where soon after his arrival an heir was presented to the Lathrop family.

There is a large bounty in this State for foxes, and the physician left the body at the house, with instructions that the bounty be collected and set aside as a nest egg for the new arrival.

KNOX LAUDS DE LA BARRA

Says Mexican President's Firmness Is Commended Highly.

Washington, August 13.—In announcing that the United States has granted authority to Mexico to send troops across American territory to quell disturbances in Lower California, Secretary of State Knox to-day paid a high tribute to the efforts of President de la Barra to restore order in Mexico. Mexican rurales will be permitted to go from Douglas, Ariz., to Tijuana, Mexico, to suppress lawlessness which, Secretary Knox says, has kept the northern part of Lower California in a turmoil for some time. He added:

This bad condition has, among other things, caused several complaints from American citizens engaged in legitimate enterprises in that section, and even the wanton murder of three Americans. The energetic action now proposed, like so many other measures being taken by President de la Barra to restore tranquility and to suppress violence throughout the Mexican republic, is being taken by the government. Indeed, our official reports have been to the effect that the situation has been improving with remarkable rapidity, due chiefly to President de la Barra's firmness, which is highly commended in all quarters.

JAPANESE FLOCK TO THE LOWER REPUBLICS

Peruvian Army Said to Have in Ranks Many Veterans of the Russian War.

San Francisco, Cal., August 13.—Great numbers of Japanese are being imported into Peru by every steamship arriving at Callao from the far East, according to officers of the Kosmos steamship yard, which arrived recently from Europe via west coast ports of call. In the last few months the Japanese population of the South American republic has increased to several thousand, and the little brown men have settled themselves in business in almost every line, from running a barber shop to conducting big mercantile stores.

It is reported that the Peruvian army, which has been engaged in sorties with the forces of Ecuador over the boundary line controversy on the frontier, contains in its ranks many sturdy natives of the Land of the Rising Sun. They are said to be veterans of the Russo-Japanese War, experienced in the art of warfare, and brought out from the Orient for the express purpose of serving as soldiers. Conditions in the lower republics are still in a state of unrest, according to news brought by the Uarda, and there were reports of several sharp engagements between the contestants in the interior.
